

- Do not get the treatment area wet for any reason
- The bandage that is put on immediately after the procedure is to be left on no longer than 2-3 hours
- The area must be open to air after the bandage has been removed and from that point forward
- Keep the treated area clean (without washing it) and dry (as opposed to keeping it moist when the tattoo was initially received)
- The treatment area is an open wound until it has fully healed
- Avoid cross contamination risks
- Do not touch the treatment area with unwashed hands. Avoid touching it at all until the scab falls off
- Do not let anyone else touch the treatment area or scab
- Keep out of contact with pets or surfaces with pet hair
- Make sure your sheets are freshly clean
- All clothing and towels coming in contact with the treatment area should be freshly clean and not reused
- Avoid dirt, oil, grease, or irritants coming in direct contact with the treatment area
- Do not try to pick at or remove the scab prematurely
- If the scab comes off too early it can lead to less than desirable results and/or scarring
- Avoid any infection risks or anything that would cause the scab to fall off prematurely such as getting any moisture or wetness on the treated area. This also includes any physical activity that may cause excessive sweating
- Do not let the treatment area come in direct contact with gym equipment, including home gym equipment or yoga mats
- You will need medical grade shower patches or cast protectors
- Make sure you have freshly washed hands or are wearing gloves when applying a bandage to avoid any potential of foreign bacteria getting sealed into the treatment area
- Be very careful after a shower to sponge bathe around the treatment area without getting it wet
- If the treated area is below the elbow or knee, elevate the area for 10 minutes every two hours or so for the first three days
- No foreign substance is allowed in the treated area such as makeup or ointment until the scab comes off without interference and the expected healing has taken place
- After the scab comes off naturally and as expected, massage the area 2-3 times a day with the tattoo vanish healing cream to aid with the healing of the “new” skin that has formed and minimize pinkness in the area
